The Guarantor is a credit institution governed by all applicable legislative and regulatory provisions and its statutes. |
| B.4b | Trend information: | Economic and financial environment January was marked by rising concerns about the outlook for the global economy under the impact of uncertainties about the Chinese economy and a new very sharp decline in oil prices. In the eurozone, the figures for the end of 2015 reassured but early indicators in 2016 showed some deterioration. In the United-States, the strong slowdown in industry weighed on growth. Due to a decline in the inflation outlook and the perception of rising risks, the European Central Bank (ECB) suggested that it could step up its easing measures while the US Federal Reserve (Fed)'s communication turned more cautious. Bond yields in the major developed countries declined. Equity markets fell sharply, despite a slight rebound late in the month. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • US: the slowdown of the industry presses on the growth The US economy has been slowing down since the 4th quarter, , mainly because of the difficulties of industrial activities exposed simultaneously to |

| | the decline in oil prices, the rising dollar and the weakening demand from emerging countries. These factors only aggravated recently while household consumption, the vigour of which had until now been the main support to the recovery, lost a little of its tonus. Thus, according to a first estimate, GDP growth in Q4 was only 0.7 % annualized (after 2 % in Q3), mainly due to a decline in investment and negative contributions of inventories and foreign trade, but without avoiding a deceleration in consumption. On the full year 2015, growth remained similar to 2014 (GDP growth of 2.4 % on average) The first indicators concerning Q1 2016 T1 were very mixed (The manufacturing ISM index, in particular, continued to indicate a contraction in activity, while households confidence remained high). The labor market figures relating to December were good (+ 292,000 jobs created, significantly higher than expected), showing that the contagion of the weakness in manufacturing to the rest of the economy remained, for the time limited. Noting this mixed overall picture, the Fed left its target Fed Funds rate unchanged at its monetary policy committee in January. While it indicated that it was still expecting to raise policy rates later in the year, its messages included a slightly more prudent tone(on the state of the US economy itself as well as the global situation) than previously. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Euro area: the recovery continued in Q4 but economic indicators weakened in January If the figures for Q4 showed a continued recovery, high frequency indicators nonetheless weakened early in 2016, most likely as a result of rising external risks and financial stress. Published in late January, the growth figures for Q4 were positive in Spain (increase in GDP of 0.8%) and France (only + 0.2%, but largely due to temporary negative factors). Over the whole of 2015, GDP growth was 3.2 % in Spain, 1.7 % in Germany and 1.1% in France. However, the business climate indicators (ISM, PMI, IFO in particular) which had, since last summer, showed a lot of resistance against the backdrop of rising stress about China and, more generally, emerging countries, surprised to the downside in January. They remained, however, at levels consistent with a continuation or a slight acceleration of the recovery. As for inflation, however, the forecasts published by the ECB in December appear already too high due to the fall in oil prices. Its President Mario Draghi hinted that further easing measures could be announced at the Monetary Policy Committee in March. Politically , the situation remained very uncertain in Spain where no government majority has yet been found after the inconclusive20 December election. Finally, throughout the European Union, negotiations to find a compromise in order to avoid an exit from the United Kingdom continued. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Emerging World : concerns as a result of the slowdown in China and the downward acceleration of oil prices The situation remained very uncertain in China. GDP growth was 6.8% (4 quarters) in Q4, the lowest increase since 2009. Other indicators (manufacturing PMI, industrial production) were lower than expected. Especially, new market movements (decrease in the currency and equities) have revived questions about the government's ability to smoothen the pace of the slowdown. In addition to these tensions about China, the further decline in oil prices has further deteriorated the prospects of exporting economies of raw materials. The fall in the currencies of these countries |

| | | generates, in addition, inflationary pressures that complicate the action of their central banks. Thus, in Russia, where GDP fell by 3.7% in 2015, the central bank facing a new fall of the ruble, had to pause in its easing. In Brazil, where the impact of the political crisis worsens the recession, the central bank kept rates unchanged despite the fall of the real and very high inflation. Finally, some oil exporting countries (Azerbaijan and Nigeria for example) have begun talks with international organizations (IMF, World Bank, African Development Bank) to obtain emergency credit lines. |

| B.4b | Information sur les tendances : Environnement économique et financier Le mois de janvier a été marqué par une montée des inquiétudes au sujet des perspectives de l'économie mondiale, sous le double effet des incertitudes concernant l'économie chinoise et d'une nouvelle baisse très prononcée du cours du pétrole. En zone euro, les chiffres portant sur fin 2015 ont rassuré mais les premiers indicateurs concernant 2016 ont été moins bons. Aux Etats-Unis, la forte baisse de régime de l'industrie a pesé sur la croissance. En raison d'une baisse des perspectives d'inflation et de la perception de risques accrus, la Banque Centrale Européenne (BCE) a laissé entendre qu'elle pourrait accroître ses mesures de soutien tandis que la Réserve fédérale américaine (Fed) a tenu un discours prudent. Les rendements obligataires des grands pays développés ont nettement baissé. Les marchés d'actions ont lourdement chuté, malgré un léger rebond en fin de mois. • Etats-Unis : la baisse de régime de l'industrie pèse sur la croissance L'économie américaine traverse, depuis le 4ème trimestre, une phase de ralentissement, principalement en raison des difficultés de l'industrie exposée à la fois au recul du cours du pétrole, à la hausse du dollar et à l'affaiblissement de la demande des pays émergents. Ces facteurs n'ont fait que s'exacerber récemment alors que la consommation des ménages, dont la vigueur avait jusqu'à présent permis de soutenir le rythme général de la |

| | reprise, a perdu un peu de son tonus. Ainsi, d'après une première estimation, la croissance du T4 n'a été que de 0,7% en rythme annualisé (après 2% au T3), principalement en raison d'un recul de l'investissement et de contributions négatives des stocks et du commerce extérieur, mais sans éviter une décélération de la consommation. Sur l'ensemble de l'année 2015, la croissance est tout de même restée similaire à celle de 2014 (progression du PIB de 2,4% en moyenne annuelle). Les premiers indicateurs portant sur le T1 2016 ont été très mitigés (l'ISM manufacturier, en particulier, a continué d'indiquer une contraction de l'activité, tandis que la confiance des ménages est restée élevée). Les chiffres du marché du travail portant sur décembre ont été bons (292 000 créations d'emplois soit nettement plus qu'attendu), rassurant sur le fait que la contagion des difficultés de l'industrie au reste de l'économie restait, pour le moment, limitée. Prenant acte de ce tableau d'ensemble mitigé, la Réserve fédérale a laissé sa cible des taux Fed Funds inchangée lors de son comité de politique monétaire de janvier. Si elle a indiqué s'attendre à poursuivre le mouvement de resserrement monétaire initié en décembre, elle a légèrement infléchi son discours (portant sur l'état de l'économie américaine elle-même et la situation dans le reste du monde) dans un sens plus prudent. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Zone euro : la reprise a continué au T4 mais les indicateurs de conjoncture ont faibli en janvier Si les chiffres concernant le T4 ont montré une poursuite de la reprise, les indicateurs de conjoncture se sont tout de même affaiblis début 2016, très probablement sous l'effet de la montée des risques externes et des tensions financières. Publié fin janvier, les chiffres de la croissance du T4 ont été positifs en Espagne (progression du PIB de +0,8%) et en France (+0,2% seulement, mais largement en raison d'éléments défavorables temporaires). Sur l'ensemble de 2015, la croissance a été de 3,2% en Espagne, de 1,7% en Allemagne et de 1,1% en France. Cependant, les indicateurs du climat des affaires (ISM, PMI, IFO notamment) qui avaient, depuis l'été dernier, très bien résisté à la montée des inquiétudes concernant la Chine et, plus généralement, les pays émergents, ont surpris à la baisse en janvier. Ils restent, néanmoins, sur des niveaux compatibles avec une poursuite, voire une légère accélération de la reprise. Concernant l'inflation, en revanche, les prévisions publiées par la BCE en décembre paraissent déjà beaucoup trop élevées en raison de la baisse du cours du pétrole. Aussi son Président, Mario Draghi, a laissé entendre que de nouvelles mesures d'assouplissement pourraient être prises dès le comité de politique monétaire de mars. Sur le plan politique, la situation est restée très incertaine en Espagne où aucune majorité gouvernementale n'a encore pu être trouvée suite aux élections sans vainqueur clair du 20 décembre. Enfin, à l'échelle de l'Union Européenne, les négociations pour trouver un compromis de nature à éviter une sortie du Royaume-Uni se sont poursuivies. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Monde émergent : inquiétudes sous l'effet du ralentissement chinois et de l'accélération baissière du cours du pétrole La situation est restée très incertaine en Chine. La croissance du PIB a été, de 6,8% (sur 4 trimestres) au T4, soit la progression la plus faible depuis 2009. D'autres indicateurs (PMI manufacturier, production industrielle) ont été inférieurs aux prévisions. Surtout, de nouveaux mouvements de marchés (baisse de la devise et des actions) ont relancé les interrogations sur la |

| | | capacité du gouvernement à amortir le rythme du ralentissement. En plus de ces tensions concernant la Chine, le nouveau recul du cours du pétrole a encore dégradé les perspectives des économies exportatrices de matières premières. Le repli des devises de ces pays génère, de plus, des tensions inflationnistes qui compliquent l'action de leurs banques centrales. Ainsi, en Russie, où le PIB a reculé de 3,7% en 2015, la banque centrale, confrontée à une nouvelle chute du rouble, a dû marquer une pause dans son cycle d'assouplissement. Au Brésil où l'effet de la crise politique s'ajoute à celui de la récession, la banque centrale a maintenu ses taux inchangés malgré la chute du real et une inflation très élevée. Enfin, certains pays exportateurs de pétrole (l'Azerbaïdjan et le Nigéria par exemple) ont engagé des pourparlers avec des organisations internationales (FMI, Banque Mondiale, Banque Africaine de développement) en vue d'obtenir des lignes de crédit d'urgence. |

If Capped Performance is specified in the applicable Final Terms, the Performance shall be equal to the lower (a) the Cap and (b) the Basic Performance calculated in accordance with (C)1 au-dessus, as determined by the Calculation Agent on the relevant Determination Date using the following formula:

And if K is specified as being applicable in the applicable Final Terms, the Performance shall be determined by the Calculation Agent on the relevant Determination Date using the following formula:

$$\text{Performance} = \text{Min} \left(\text{Cap}; \left(\frac{\text{Final Value}_i}{\text{Initial Value}} - 1 \right) \pm K \right)$$

Or

as specified in the applicable Final Terms.

4. Capped Restrike Performance

If Capped Restrike Performance is specified in the applicable Final Terms, the Performance shall be equal to the lower of (a) the Cap and (b) the Basic Restrike Performance calculated in accordance with (C)2 above, as determined by the Calculation Agent on the relevant Determination Date using the following formula:

And if K is specified as being applicable in the applicable Final Terms, the Performance shall be determined by the Calculation Agent on the relevant Determination Date using the following formula:

$$\text{Performance} = \text{Min} \left(\text{Cap}; \left(\frac{\text{Final Value}_i}{\text{Final Value}_{i-1}} - 1 \right) \pm K \right)$$

The Guarantor is a credit institution governed by all applicable legislative and regulatory provisions and its statutes. |
| B.4b | Trend information: | Economic and financial environment January was marked by rising concerns about the outlook for the global economy under the impact of uncertainties about the Chinese economy and a new very sharp decline in oil prices. In the eurozone, the figures for the end of 2015 reassured but early indicators in 2016 showed some deterioration. In the United-States, the strong slowdown in industry weighed on growth. Due to a decline in the inflation outlook and the perception of rising risks, the European Central Bank (ECB) suggested that it could step up its easing measures while the US Federal Reserve (Fed)'s communication turned more cautious. Bond yields in the major developed countries declined. Equity markets fell sharply, despite a slight rebound late in the month. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • US: the slowdown of the industry presses on the growth The US economy has been slowing down since the 4th quarter, , mainly because of the difficulties of industrial activities exposed simultaneously to the decline in oil prices, the rising dollar and the weakening demand from emerging countries. These factors only aggravated recently while household |

| | consumption, the vigour of which had until now been the main support to the recovery, lost a little of its tonus. Thus, according to a first estimate, GDP growth in Q4 was only 0.7 % annualized (after 2 % in Q3), mainly due to a decline in investment and negative contributions of inventories and foreign trade, but without avoiding a deceleration in consumption. On the full year 2015, growth remained similar to 2014 (GDP growth of 2.4 % on average) The first indicators concerning Q1 2016 T1 were very mixed (The manufacturing ISM index, in particular, continued to indicate a contraction in activity, while households confidence remained high). The labor market figures relating to December were good (+ 292,000 jobs created, significantly higher than expected), showing that the contagion of the weakness in manufacturing to the rest of the economy remained, for the time limited. Noting this mixed overall picture, the Fed left its target Fed Funds rate unchanged at its monetary policy committee in January. While it indicated that it was still expecting to raise policy rates later in the year, its messages included a slightly more prudent tone(on the state of the US economy itself as well as the global situation) than previously. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Euro area: the recovery continued in Q4 but economic indicators weakened in January If the figures for Q4 showed a continued recovery, high frequency indicators nonetheless weakened early in 2016, most likely as a result of rising external risks and financial stress. Published in late January, the growth figures for Q4 were positive in Spain (increase in GDP of 0.8%) and France (only + 0.2%, but largely due to temporary negative factors). Over the whole of 2015, GDP growth was 3.2 % in Spain, 1.7 % in Germany and 1.1% in France. However, the business climate indicators (ISM, PMI, IFO in particular) which had, since last summer, showed a lot of resistance against the backdrop of rising stress about China and, more generally, emerging countries, surprised to the downside in January. They remained, however, at levels consistent with a continuation or aslight acceleration of the recovery. As for inflation, however, the forecasts published by the ECB in December appear already too high due to the fall in oil prices. Its President Mario Draghi hinted that further easing measures could be announced at the Monetary Policy Committee in March. Politically , the situation remained very uncertain in Spain where no government majority has yet been found after the inconclusive20 December election. Finally, throughout the European Union, negotiations to find a compromise in order to avoid an exit from the United Kingdom continued. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Emerging World : concerns as a result of the slowdown in China and the downward acceleration of oil prices The situation remained very uncertain in China. GDP growth was 6.8% (4 quarters) in Q4, the lowest increase since 2009. Other indicators (manufacturing PMI, industrial production) were lower than expected. Especially, new market movements (decrease in the currency and equities) have revived questions about the government's ability to smoothen the pace of the slowdown. In addition to these tensions about China, the further decline in oil prices has further deteriorated the prospects of exporting economies of raw materials. The fall in the currencies of these countries generates, in addition, inflationary pressures that complicate the action of |

| | | their central banks. Thus, in Russia, where GDP fell by 3.7% in 2015, the central bank facing a new fall of the ruble, had to pause in its easing. In Brazil, where the impact of the political crisis worsens the recession, the central bank kept rates unchanged despite the fall of the real and very high inflation. Finally, some oil exporting countries (Azerbaijan and Nigeria for example) have begun talks with international organizations (IMF, World Bank, African Development Bank) to obtain emergency credit lines. | | | | |

| | grands pays développés ont nettement baissé. Les marchés d'actions ont lourdement chuté, malgré un léger rebond en fin de mois. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Etats-Unis : la baisse de régime de l'industrie pèse sur la croissance L'économie américaine traverse, depuis le 4ème trimestre, une phase de ralentissement, principalement en raison des difficultés de l'industrie exposée à la fois au recul du cours du pétrole, à la hausse du dollar et à l'affaiblissement de la demande des pays émergents. Ces facteurs n'ont fait que s'exacerber récemment alors que la consommation des ménages, dont la vigueur avait jusqu'à présent permis de soutenir le rythme général de la reprise, a perdu un peu de son tonus. Ainsi, d'après une première estimation, la croissance du T4 n'a été que de 0,7% en rythme annualisé (après 2% au T3), principalement en raison d'un recul de l'investissement et de contributions négatives des stocks et du commerce extérieur, mais sans éviter une décélération de la consommation. Sur l'ensemble de l'année 2015, la croissance est tout de même restée similaire à celle de 2014 (progression du PIB de 2,4% en moyenne annuelle). Les premiers indicateurs portant sur le T1 2016 ont été très mitigés (l'ISM manufacturier, en particulier, a continué d'indiquer une contraction de l'activité, tandis que la confiance des ménages est restée élevée). Les chiffres du marché du travail portant sur décembre ont été bons (292 000 créations d'emplois soit nettement plus qu'attendu), rassurant sur le fait que la contagion des difficultés de l'industrie au reste de l'économie restait, pour le moment, limitée. Prenant acte de ce tableau d'ensemble mitigé, la Réserve fédérale a laissé sa cible des taux Fed Funds inchangée lors de son comité de politique monétaire de janvier. Si elle a indiqué s'attendre à poursuivre le mouvement de resserrement monétaire initié en décembre, elle a légèrement infléchi son discours (portant sur l'état de l'économie américaine elle-même et la situation dans le reste du monde) dans un sens plus prudent. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Zone euro : la reprise a continué au T4 mais les indicateurs de conjoncture ont faibli en janvier Si les chiffres concernant le T4 ont montré une poursuite de la reprise, les indicateurs de conjoncture se sont tout de même affaiblis début 2016, très probablement sous l'effet de la montée des risques externes et des tensions financières. Publié fin janvier, les chiffres de la croissance du T4 ont été positifs en Espagne (progression du PIB de +0,8%) et en France (+0,2% seulement, mais largement en raison d'éléments défavorables temporaires). Sur l'ensemble de 2015, la croissance a été de 3,2% en Espagne, de 1,7% en Allemagne et de 1,1% en France. Cependant, les indicateurs du climat des affaires (ISM, PMI, IFO notamment) qui avaient, depuis l'été dernier, très bien résisté à la montée des inquiétudes concernant la Chine et, plus généralement, les pays émergents, ont surpris à la baisse en janvier. Ils restent, néanmoins, sur des niveaux compatibles avec une poursuite, voire une légère accélération de la reprise. Concernant l'inflation, en revanche, les prévisions publiées par la BCE en décembre paraissent déjà beaucoup trop élevée en raison de la baisse du cours du pétrole. Aussi son Président, Mario Draghi, a laissé entendre que de nouvelles mesures d'assouplissement pourraient être prises dès le comité de politique monétaire de mars. Sur le plan politique, la situation est restée très incertaine en Espagne où aucune majorité gouvernementale n'a encore pu être trouvée suite aux élections sans vainqueur clair du 20 décembre. Enfin, à l'échelle de l'Union Européenne, les |

| | | négociations pour trouver un compromis de nature à éviter une sortie du Royaume-Uni se sont poursuivies. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Monde émergent : inquiétudes sous l'effet du ralentissement chinois et de l'accélération baissière du cours du pétrole La situation est restée très incertaine en Chine. La croissance du PIB a été, de 6,8% (sur 4 trimestres) au T4, soit la progression la plus faible depuis 2009. D'autres indicateurs (PMI manufacturier, production industrielle) ont été inférieurs aux prévisions. Surtout, de nouveaux mouvements de marchés (baisse de la devise et des actions) ont relancé les interrogations sur la capacité du gouvernement à amortir le rythme du ralentissement. En plus de ces tensions concernant la Chine, le nouveau recul du cours du pétrole a encore dégradé les perspectives des économies exportatrices de matières premières. Le repli des devises de ces pays génère, de plus, des tensions inflationnistes qui compliquent l'action de leurs banques centrales. Ainsi, en Russie, où le PIB a reculé de 3,7% en 2015, la banque centrale, confrontée à une nouvelle chute du rouble, a dû marquer une pause dans son cycle d'assouplissement. Au Brésil où l'effet de la crise politique s'ajoute à celui de la récession, la banque centrale a maintenu ses taux inchangés malgré la chute du real et une inflation très élevée. Enfin, certains pays exportateurs de pétrole (l'Azerbaïdjan et le Nigéria par exemple) ont engagé des pourparlers avec des organisations internationales (FMI, Banque Mondiale, Banque Africaine de développement) en vue d'obtenir des lignes de crédit d'urgence. |
